Vacancies are reported to the Recruitment Center on a voluntary basis. The vacancies reported represent positions in community health centers, hospitals and private practices. The information does not reflect vacant positions with some of the larger health systems such as Dartmouth Hitchcock Clinics or the Elliot Health System, both of which maintain their own vacancy tracking systems.

*On average, a primary care physician cares for 2,000 – 2,500 patients. A nurse practitioner or physician assistant cares for an average of 750 – 1,000 patients. Source: NACHC, January 2005.
